CEDRIC DEHORITY ROUTES BURGLAR

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe DeHority of Elwood, Well Known Here,
Fires on Intruder.

LATTER COVERS HIM WITH GUN

Fearless Boy, Finding Robber in House, Sets About to Catch Him, Without Results.

Cedric DeHority, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe DeHority of Elwood, and grandson of Mrs. Mary E. Beale of this city, had a thrilling experience with a burglar in his home Monday night. The boy spends much of his time here each summer. Mrs. DeHority was formerly Miss Margaret Beale of this city and has many friends and relatives here. The boy's bravery in dealing with the robber was the cause for many compliments being paid him.

Monday evening the DeHority family left home about six thirty, Mr. and Mrs. DeHority going to a social function while the son visited several of the picture shows. He returned home about 9:30 and was surprised to notice a light burning in a front bedroom upstairs. He thought it had been turned out when the family left. Fearing that all was not right, he hunted up a rifle left on the lower floor and started on a tour of the house.

He entered each of the several rooms before going to the one where the light was burning. In all he looked under beds and behind chairs, finding nothing wrong and he had about concluded that he was unnecessarily alarmed when he finally went into the lighted bed room. Here also he found things not as they had been left. He was just preparing to leave when he happened to think of the closet in the room. He stepped to the door and started to open it when a voice from within said "Wait a minute."

Frightened almost out of his wits and without waiting to put the rifle to his shoulder, young DeHority pulled away at the trigger. An explosion followed, the shot entering the floor and going down through the ceiling into the parlor below.

The smoke from the shot had not blown away before the door was thrown open and a masked man stepped from the closet, holding an ugly looking revolver before him. This he stuck in DeHority's face and ordered him to back out of the room. Keeping the gun in line, he continued to back the young man to the hall and then ordered him to stand there as he descended the stairs.

With the gun pointed at him, DeHority was afraid to raise an outcry but the moment the fellow had stepped out the door, he hurried to the telephone and called the police. By the time the officers arrived, however, the robber had made good his escape and there was no hope of catching him. The young man was able to get an excellent description of him and believes he will be able to recognize him should they ever meet again.

This is the fourth time burglars have entered the DeHority home within the past two years. Last September while Mr. and Mrs. DeHority were in Canada, Cedric went home one evening to find every drawer in the house had been opened and the contents scattered about on the floor. Two years ago the house was also entered but in no instance did the intruders get away with any large amount of loot.

Generally fair tonight and Thursday. Colder Thursday.

The order to this effect was issued yesterday by the railroad commission of Indiana at Indianapolis.

LANDS ON GOOD COMMITTEES

Senator Cary Jackson Appointed to Place on Six in Upper House of Legislature.

ALL OF THEM ARE IMPORTANT

Local Man is Named Chairman of Benevolent Institution Also on Court Organization.

According to the committee announcements just made public, Cary Jackson of Rushville, State senator from Rush, Fayette and Hancock counties, is chairman of one very important committee and is appointed to a place on five other good committees.

Mr. Jackson is chairman of committee on benevolent institutions and is a member of the following telegraph and telephone, rights and privileges, organization of courts, legislative apportionment and federal relations.

The committee on rights and privileges in the senate is counted one of the most important ones. The one of which Mr. Jackson is chairman is also a committee of considerable weight. The legislative appointment committee is probably next in relative importance and the one on organization of courts comes next.

Rushville men who favor separate circuit court bill for Rush and Shelby counties feel pretty secure since Mr. Jackson has been made a member of it and since Senator Will Yarling of Shelbyville is also a member. Senator Yarling is very favorable to the measure which would make two courts out of the sixteenth judicial district and it is he who introduced it in the senate. Representative Billman of Shelby county introduced the same bill in the lower house.

Since only two other bills have been introduced to get separate circuits for courts, it is felt here that the local measure will have pretty easy sailing.

Senator Jackson besides gathering good committees has been quite active and already has introduced one bill. His proposed law is to increase the salaries of prosecuting attorneys in districts containing more than one county. It is now known as senate bill No. 12 and was referred to the committee on fees and salaries.

IS BELIEVED ORDER WAS NOT ISSUED

Report That Railroad Commission
Has Given L. E. & W. One of
Two Alternatives is Untrue.

ATTORNEYS RECEIVE NO WORD

The Newcastle Times published a report that the State railroad commission has issued an order giving the Lake Erie and Western, plying between here and Newcastle, one of two alternatives: either put on two trains between the terminal points, or reverse the run of the other train. The latter would improve the mail service, but it would not give the people on the line in the northern part of Rush county any chance whatever to go to Rushville and back the same day.

It is not believed here that an order has been issued else the attorneys for the petitioners would have been notified. Sparks and Gary, and S. L. Trabue have received no word that such an order has been made.

AFFECTS ONLY ONE PLACE HERE

Amendment Revoking Taft's Executive Order Fails in National House of Representatives.

WOULDN'T SERVE PURPOSE

Local Officials Say 4th Class Postmasters in Indiana Were Put in Service by T. R.

The failure of Representative Cullop's amendment to pass in the lower house of congress at Washington has some significance in Rushville and Rush county as the amendment to the postal appropriation bill sought to revoke the recent executive orders of President Taft placing about a hundred thousand postal employees under civil service.

Mr. Cullop had expected that the entire Indiana delegation, except Representative Crumpacker, would stand by him in this fight for the amendment ripping up the classified service, and he does not know how those who did not will ever be able to square themselves with their Hoosier constituents who want places in the Federal service under a resident Wilson.

When it came to a showdown on a yea and nay vote, the Indiana delegation divided seven for the amendment and five against Representative Gray of this district being one who voted for the measure.

The roll call showed 106 votes for it and 141 against it. The Democratic members generally voted for it. The Cullop amendment engendered a bitter feeling in the Indiana delegation. Cullop was criticised by timid members for springing it without forewarning. Representative Crumpacker was not present when the vote was taken. Those who voted for it, the Indiana members who voted against it say, will hear something drop when their constituents learn of their action.

The amendment, providing for the revocation of the executive order of Oct. 15, 1912, by which President Taft exempted 30,000 fourth-class postmasters from the "political job" class, and of the order of Sept. 30, 1910, which classified assistant postmasters and postal clerks in first and second-class offices, was defeated on a roll call vote, 141 to 106. The Republicans voted practically solidly against the amendment, and they were joined by many Democrats.

Postoffice officials here say the revocation of the order would have affected none only the deputy postmaster. The eight fourth class postmasters in Rush county and the three clerks in the local office were placed in the classified service by an order of Roosevelt's six years ago.

Under that order only fourth class postmasters and clerks in postoffices north of the Ohio river and east of the Mississippi were put under civil service. This was done as an experiment, and Pres. Taft's two orders included only those south of the Ohio and west of the Mississippi and assistant postmasters in other parts of the United States. Representative Cullop's purpose was to make some jobs for Indiana constituents, but he would have failed had the amendment passed.

The amendment was voted on Monday by the house in committee of the whole. There can be no roll call in committee of the whole. The Republicans, at the instigation of Minority Leader Mann, purposely refrained from voting, their object being to force the Democrats on record on a roll call, as they did.

If the Republicans had voted

HE HAS REASON TO KNOW

Senator Cary Jackson Believes Blue
Sky Law Is Needed.

"I am very much in favor of a blue sky law," said Cary Jackson, senator from Rush, according to the Indianapolis News. "Indiana for several years has been the dumping ground of all the get-rich-quick swamps in the country, and there has been more worthless stock sold here than anywhere in the Union. And some of it is horribly rotten—I know, for I have some of it," added the senator, pathetically.

COUNTY FAIR WILL BE A WEEK LATER

Dates Are Fixed Tuesday at Annual Meeting of Eastern Indiana
Fair Association at Muncie.

CONNERSVILLE IS ADMITTED

At the meeting of the Eastern Indiana Fair Association in Muncie yesterday the date for the annual Rush county fair was set for the last week in August, the week of the twenty-fifth. The fair will begin on the twenty-sixth, Tuesday, and will continue four days. This is a week later than last year, the fair being held then the next to the last week in August.

The only thing of importance transacted at the meeting yesterday was the admission of Huntington and Connersville as members of the circuit. The Connersville fair will be held the same week as Shelby county's, or the week following the local one. W. L. King, secretary of the Rush County Fair Association, attended, and next Wednesday he will go to North Vernon to be present at the meeting of the Southeastern Indiana Fair Association.

RUMOR THAT SALOON FIGHT IS STARTED

Meeting Reported to be Called Today to Consider Circulation of Petitions.

MINISTERS HOLD A SESSION

It was reported today that committees were to be appointed this afternoon and other arrangements made to circulate petitions to get signatures favoring an election under the local option law. A meeting of the Rushville Ministerial association was held this afternoon at the home of the Rev. J. B. Meacham, but before the meeting concluded the ministers would not discuss what action they would take or had taken. No laymen interested in the proposed election were present.

The two year period under the Proctor law will expire Monday, February 24, when it will be lawful to call a special local option election if the signatures of twenty per cent. of the voters can be obtained. The city went wet two years ago by a majority of less than a hundred.

The ministers have elected for the year: President, A. W. Jamieson; vice-president, C. M. Yocum; secretary and treasurer, W. H. Wylie.

Mrs. Vashti Bush of near Homer is very ill and is not expected to live.

PAPER AROUSES OLD MEMORIES

Efforts to Organize Militia Here Before
Opening of Civil War is Recalled.

IT BELONGS TO SCOTT CONDE

Names of Many Prominent Men Who Still Live Appear—Company
Never Filled.

Scott Conde, a veteran of the civil war, happened on to an old paper at his home yesterday which will arouse a flood of memories in the minds of many of the older residents of Rushville who can recall the sixties and all the suffering and sorrow they brought.

The paper had to do with the beginning of the civil war. It reveals that before Fort Sumpter was fired on an attempt was made to organize a company here in preparation for battle with the traitors of the country. A paper was circulated to get volunteers and twenty-nine names were obtained. The company was never formed, however, as the call to arms came and the men who signed the paper went different ways, some of them fighting side by side in the war and others scattering to the far corners of the earth. The introduction to the paper read as follows:

"We whose names are hereto subscribed, being citizens and residents of the State of Indiana, agree to form ourselves into a volunteer militia company in the Indiana Legion under the provisions of an act for the organization and regulation of the Indiana militia, approved May the eleventh, 1861.

"We severally undertake that we will each uniform ourselves in accordance with the requirements of said law.

"The company will be organized without delay at Rushville in Rush county in said State, and be called the name never given."

The list of signatures contains the names of some who have passed to the great beyond, others who survived the war and are still among the substantial citizens of the community and still others who will not be remembered by any people of the present generation.

Room was left on the paper for the month and day when the signatures were all obtained, but as the company was never completed the date was never filled in. Suffice to know that it was in the spring of 1861.

The following names appear on the old sheet that is yellow with age: Aaron L. Osborn, O. H. Brann, W. L. Peckham, George A. Wooster, O. H. Denning, N. E. Conde, P. L. Hoor, John A. Worthington, Rew Pugh, John B. Carr, John W. Thomas, Wm. Frame, C. Ridenbaugh, S. H. Mauzy, W. S. Conde, J. H. Mauzy, F. Batey, T. Abererombie, James C. Booth, R. F. Denning, Homer Gregg, S. T. Lee, Lewis Hinchman, B. F. Voiles, Julian Murphy, Lewis Woodcock, John Mitchell, Samuel B. Laughlin and Benjamin Walton.

KICKED BY HORSE.

C. C. Gunning, a prominent farmer of near Manilla met with a painful accident Monday morning, when he was kicked on the right leg by a horse he had been driving. Mr. Gunning had just returned from the home of a neighbor and was unharnessing the animal when she delivered a powerful blow on the larger bone below the knee, fracturing the member.

SMASHED THE LONG DEADLOCK

Illinois Senate Has Been Organized at Last.

ELIMINATED BULL MOOSERS

Bi-Partisan Organization Between the Republicans and Democrats Was Effected After Bitter Exchanges and Repeated Caucuses of Both Parties In Which the Progressive Senators Were Left Out in the Cold.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 15.—By the establishment of a bi-partisan organization which leaves the two Bull Moose senators, Walter C. Jones and Harris, out in the cold, the deadlock in the Illinois senate was broken late last night. Repeated caucuses of both the Republican and Democratic senators were held yesterday, and last night the bi-partisan organization was agreed upon. There were bitter exchanges between Senator Jones, the Progressive party leader, and several Democratic senators. The smashing of the deadlock came upon the election of a secretary. James N. Paddock of Springfield was placed in nomination for that position. Twenty-five Republicans and a number of Democrats eager to organize the senate voted for him.

Sensor Jones compared this bi-partisan agreement with the bi-partisan agreement which resulted in the election of Lorimer as United States senator. Senator Jones did not vote on the Paddock appointment, merely saying "present."

BIG POWDER MILL LETS GO

Two Persons Killed and Connecticut Village Partially Wiped Out.

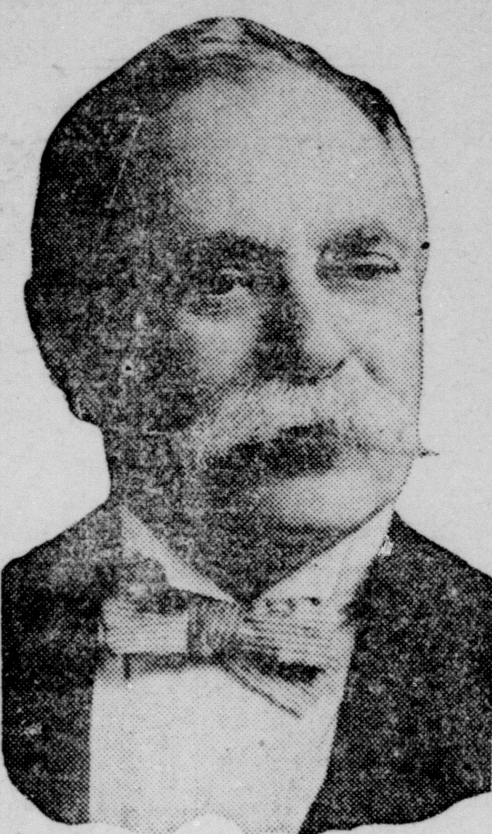

Enfield, Conn., Jan. 15.—An explosion in the mills of the Dupont Powder company near Hazardville blew two employees to atoms. Four big powder mills were destroyed and a raging fire started, which quickly spread to the adjoining woods and then to Hazardville. The village was partially wiped out. Windows were broken in Hartford, twenty miles distant. Many people were hurt and thousands of dollars worth of property destroyed. The dead men are Charles Blunden and Jacob Stocker.

When the mill blew up windows in houses half a mile away were shattered and buildings rocked on their foundations. Practically every building in the village suffered.

JULIUS HARBURGER

in "Big Tim's" Place.

New York, Jan. 15.—Although "Big Tim" Sullivan will certainly be unable to take the place in the house of representatives to which he was elected in November, no action has been taken toward choosing his successor. One of the possible candidates, according to east side rumor, is Julius Harburger, who has another year to serve as sheriff.

Mr. Wilson Dominates Jersey Assembly.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 15.—The coming session will be dominated by Governor Wilson to even a greater extent than the two preceding sessions during his administration, if the organization of the legislature may be taken as a keynote. Both branches are now Democratic and it was perhaps a foregone conclusion that with a Democratic governor who is also president elect of the United States, the executive influence should extend to the legislative halls to a greater degree than is customary.

As if in consonance with the views recently expressed by Governor Wilson, both of the newly elected presiding officers of the legislature declared in their speeches of acceptance that progressive legislation should be the aim of the present session. Senator James F. Fielder of Hudson was elected president of the senate, and Assemblyman L. R. Tawlor of Monmouth, speaker of the house. Senator Fielder will become acting governor of the state when Governor Wilson resigns and will serve in that capacity until the governor to be elected next fall qualifies a year hence.

OLD FRIENDS ARE THE BEST

Judge Archbald Finds This True When He Reaches Home.

Seranton, Pa., Jan. 15.—Former Judge Robert W. Archbald reached his home city at 6:40 o'clock last evening from Washington, accompanied by his wife, who was with him during his trial before the senate. There was no one to meet the Archbalds at the station, even the reporters keeping away as a mark of courtesy. Instead of going at once to their home, the former judge and his wife went to the Hotel Jermyn and took a room for the night. Later in the evening several friends, learning of his whereabouts, went to the hotel and he greeted them all affectionately in the lobby of the hotel. Among them were several old cronies and others whose names figured in the senate trial.

Be Reasonable in Selecting Your Shoes

Give your five toes room for five toes, House them in a pair of shoes stamped Cox. Then you will understand why so many people buy our shoes instead of others. It is not the price alone that makes the better shoe, but better fit, better looks, better service, with the better price. You can buy shoes anywhere, but Cox's shoes can be bought only at Cox's shoe store. It's even a better shoe than you are now wearing even if it is a shoe you are satisfied with. Try a pair of them.

GOT JACK JOHNSON ON HIS WAY OVER BORDER

Black Champion Was Headed Straight for Canada.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—In the nominal custody of federal officers, Jack Johnson, negro pugilist, arrived in Chicago last night from Battle Creek, Mich., and will have to explain to Judge Carpenter the reasons which prompted him to go to an outlying railroad station and board a train for Toronto, Canada, while he was at liberty on bonds of $30,000 awaiting trial under an indictment charging violation of the Mann white slave act. Should the explanation the negro offers not prove satisfactory to Judge Carpenter, the bonds in all probability will be set aside and the pugilist remanded to jail to await trial.

Federal officials in Chicago seem to be convinced that Johnson, who was taken from a train speeding toward the international boundary line, was making an attempt to leave the United States far behind him. The offense for which Johnson was indicted is not extraditable and there have been frequent reports that the black would rather lose money than stand trial. This opinion is strengthened in the minds of the department of justice officials from the fact that the baggage of the negro and his white wife and valet consisted of three big trunks, three suitcases and an assortment of smaller baggage, enough in fact to take them around the world.

When the department of justice officials learned that Johnson had left the city without taking them into his confidence, they ordered his detention at Battle Creek, and immediately sent an officer to bring him back. Johnson said he was going to Toronto for a few days to consult with his manager concerning a fight with Al Palzer. "I was not trying to jump my bond," said Johnson. "I talked with my bondsmen and they said it would be all right for me to go, and my attorney told me the same. Now that the federal officers have got me I'll stay here until this whole business is straightened out."

A DONNYBROOK FAIR ROW Is Expected to Follow Passage of Home Rule Bill.

London, Jan. 15.—The third reading and final passage of the home rule bill tomorrow night is likely to be followed by lively street scenes. The Irish Nationalists have arranged to gather in force outside the parliament buildings with a band which will play "God Save Ireland," "The Wearin' of the Green," and other such airs. A rocket will be set off to announce the final division and the crowd will then give vent to its enthusiasm in triumphant yells. There is some fear of a Donnybrook fair row, as it is reported the Unionists are organizing a counter demonstration. The Nationalists as a party have nothing to do with the arrangements for the celebration.

The story of an amazing filibustering plot in London to seize and colonize 150,000 square miles of territory in Counani, North Brazil, is being investigated by the British foreign office and the Brazilian legation in London.

THREAT OF WAR ENDS ARMISTICE

But May Not Mean Resumption of Fighting.

MANY OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

Well Informed Views on the Subject Hold That Action of Balkan Allies Is Merely Recommendation to Their Respective Governments and Will Have to Be Considered by Three Cabinets Before Becoming Effective.

London, Jan. 15.—Although it caused the war clouds to lower ominously, the bombshell thrown out by the allies by announcing that they were going back to their respective countries and that the war would be resumed, is not equivalent to a rupture of the negotiations. Not only is the threat of a resumption of the war conditional on Turkey's non-compliance with the advice of the powers, but according to some well-informed views, the note of the delegates of the allies to Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary, is merely a recommendation to their respective governments, and it will have to be considered by three cabinets before it can be effective. This rather suggests the tail wagging the dog.

Another version is that the delegates are acting in obedience to orders from their governments and have resolved on a plan of action which they will keep secret until the last moment, as they are pledged to await the representations of the ambassadors at Constantinople to the porte. The decision definitely to break up the peace conference in London simultaneously with the presentation to the Turkish government of the note of the European powers will be communicated to the porte in a formal note. At the same time it was decided to instruct the commanders of the armed forces of the allies in the field to terminate the armistice which has been in operation since Dec. 3.

Since that date hostilities between Bulgaria and Serbia on the one side and Turkey on the other have ceased. Greece, which did not sign the armistice protocol, has continued fighting against Turkey, both on sea and land, with varying success. Montenegro, also, which was nominally a party to the armistice, has been engaged in the interim in many severe skirmishes with the troops forming the garrison of the Turkish fortress of Scutari, which shows no sign of yielding. It is believed that the Ottoman troops there, most of whom form part of the regular army, are fairly well provided with food and ammunition, as Scutari was always a great center of the grain trade and the Turks have a considerable arsenal there.

Janina, in the south of Epirus, was the rallying point for a large force of Turkish troops who escaped from Monastir and other places in Macedonia and Albania. The Greeks have closed all approaches to the fortress from the south, but to the north and west the communications are still open and the Turks there are able to obtain supplies.

Conflicting reports as to conditions in the great fortress of Adrianople are current, but it appears evident that the Turkish troops and inhabitants of the city are suffering greatly from disease and lack of supplies. They have been besieged since the last week of October by the Bulgarians, who live since been reinforced by large bodies of Servians fresh from the victories on the other side of the Balkan peninsula.

Before the Tchatalja lines defending Constantinople is a great army of Bulgarians, strongly entrenched, and fronting them are large bodies of Turkish troops, some of them the remnants of the defeated armies which fled before the advancing Bulgarians and other fresh troops brought up from the Turkish provinces of Asia Minor.

The threatening note of the allies to the Turks is to be worded in such a way that it will become effective only if the Ottoman government refuses compliance with the advice given by the ambassadors of the European powers. The members of the Balkan league are of the opinion that the note drafted by the diplomats is so weak that it requires some sharp backing and this, they think, will be supplied by their threat to continue hostilities.

Ferdinand to the Front. Sofia, Jan. 15.—King Ferdinand and the members of the Bulgarian cabinet started at midnight for Mustapha Pasha to meet General Savoff and other Bulgarian commanders.

They All Want These Jobs. Berlin, Jan. 15.—In the interests of the increasing number of American tourists in the city, English-speaking policemen will be placed at the principal street crossings. These officers will be designated by crossed American and English colors on their left arms. These positions are looked upon as very desirable and many policemen are crowding the language schools in order to make themselves eligible for the posts.

Police Not Satisfied.

Frankfort, Ind., Jan. 15.—After making a thorough investigation into the death of Guffy Thomas, about which there existed an element of mystery, Coroner Wise returned a verdict in which he found that the man came to his death by shooting himself through the head. The police department and the state's attorney expressed themselves as not satisfied with the coroner's investigation, and the matter will probably be placed in the hands of the grand jury for further investigation.

Grand Jury Indicts Fox.

New York, Jan. 15.—The grand jury voted to indict Policeman Eugene Fox, who was accused by George A. Sipp, the Harlem hotel proprietor who testified recently before the Curran aldermanic committee. The charge made by Sipp is that Fox extorted money from him for which police protection was promised. The names of two police officials whose rank is much higher than that of Fox, who is a patrolman, were brought into the testimony given by Sipp.

Didn't Hear Train Coming.

Lagrange, Ind., Jan. 15.—Two men riding in an automobile were instantly killed by a passenger train on the Grand Rapids & Indiana railway. Charles Timmis, a liverman of Lagrange, and Joseph Talbot of Wabash, a traveling man, were the victims. The side curtains on the machine prevented them from seeing or hearing the train. Talbot was a picture salesman and was delivering pictures to the farmers.

A Lesson From Carthage.

Rushville, although it may brag of being of such size that it can be called a city, without overdoing the thing, can still take a lesson from Carthage, a place of much smaller population.

Carthage has an ordinance which provides that "any ashes, slops, waste water, trash and any refuse matter whatever in the streets and alleys of said town shall constitute a nuisance."

The next section of the ordinance continues as follows:

"That any person or persons who shall hereafter throw, place or deposit any ashes, slops, waste water, trash or any refuse matter in any street or alley of said town, or any person or persons who shall suffer or permit any such ashes, slops, waste water, trash or any refuse matter to be taken from his premises and thrown, placed or deposited in any street or alley of said town shall be deemed to have created a nuisance and shall be fined in any sum not less than three dollars nor more than ten dollars, together with the cost of the action."

At present the alleys in Rushville are so full of trash that some of them are almost impassable. Many people have complained of their condition. Possibly those who have complained were not to blame but some one is at fault.

There may not be a city ordinance against such a practice but people who have the good fortune to live in such an enlightened age as this should have enough common decency not to deposit debris in alleys, that the city is not only made unsightly but a fit condition to set health at a premium is made by careless and thoughtless acts.

Probably there are those who will always make their alley a trash pile, ordinance or no ordinance. The evil could be abated to some extent if the city administration could be prevailed upon to hold a clean-up day every spring. Such a day has been tried here and was universally popular. Why not again?

The city could take another step further and still not be ahead of the procession. Rushville should provide wagons which will empty ash and trash cans once every week. Then there would be no necessity for an annual clean-up day. The city should agree to carry off the collected debris of a week's making, providing it is placed in the alley in a closed receptacle that could be easily handled by the collector. Otherwise householders should be required to care for the garbage and ashes on their own premises so no

ARE TAUGHT HOW TO MAKE SALAD

Women At Purdue Short Course Hear Lecture and See Demonstration by Roberta McNeill.

CORN GROWERS IN MEETING

Prof. A. G. Philips Makes Plea For Pure Bred Fowls—Alfalfa Adapted to Indiana.

Interest at the third day's session of the Farmers' Short Course at Purdue university, centered in the annual convention of the Indiana Corn Growers' association, one of the largest and most active agricultural organizations in the State.

Principally for the benefit of the corn growers' today Prof. A. T. Wiancko, Chief of the Soils and Crops Department of the Experiment Station, told a large audience of farmers how to grow alfalfa in Indiana. "There is no more interesting field crop before the Indiana farmer at the present time than alfalfa," he said. "Its adaptation to Indiana conditions when given proper treatment has been abundantly proven in all parts of the state, and its more general use is simply a matter of becoming acquainted with it and learning the soil conditions and cultural treatment it requires."

That salads have an important food value and should have a place in the daily menu in the home was clearly demonstrated by Miss Roberta McNeill of the Purdue Extension Department before a large audience of women and girls today. Miss McNeill of the Purdue Extension department of the making of salads and salad dressings. Many women, said Miss McNeill, do not realize the food value of salads and often use them as an appetizing dish without considering that the rest of the meal should be balanced to make the salad of equal food value to any other food containing the same ingredients. Vegetables, fruits, nuts and meats were used in the preparation of the salads. The making of salad dressings of the common varieties was demonstrated. The garnishing and serving were then explained. The salad should be chilled thoroughly before serving; all garnishes such as lettuce, endive, parsley etc., should be crisp and fresh, while the seasoning of the salad dressings was discussed at some length.

"It really makes little difference what breed is used so long as the owner likes it," said Prof. A. G. Philips at the third day's session of the Poultry Department today, in a talk on "Management of Poultry on the Farm." Prof. Philips said the pure bred fowl was much more desired than the scrub variety because the former will produce as many eggs and as much meat as the mongrel and produce it more uniformly. The owner of pure bred stock also has an opportunity of selling eggs for hatching and the cockerels for breedings to his neighbors. This method of selling part of the surplus stock is more profitable than selling it on the market.

"The Health of the Dairy Cow" was discussed by R. A. Craig, veterinarian. Dr. Craig said that a dairy cow that is not in good health cannot produce milk at a profit, and as a large portion of cow's milk is consumed uncooked, the general health of the cow is of vital importance to the consumer.

"A cow's health," he said, "depends on the condition of the quarters, whether sanitary or insanitary, the character of the ration, the amount of feed given and the kind, and the ability of the person who has charge of the animal. Experience, good judgment and the ability to see conditions that should be corrected are essential qualities of a successful dairyman. The common diseases of dairy cows are those of the digestive tract, those of the reproductive organs and those of an infectious nature. Dairymen should be familiar with the symptoms of the first three classes of diseases and know how to correct the simpler forms, and to secure the services of a veterinarian to treat such disease as he is unable to diagnose. Dairyment should not attempt to treat diseases they do not understand. Serious results frequently follow un-intelligent lines of treatment."

In connection with the annual convention of the Indiana Corn Growers' association an address was delivered by Dr. C. C. Hopkins of the University of Illinois, whose topic was "Maintenance of Soil Fertility in Permanent Agriculture." Prof. O. J. Kern, superintendent of schools of Winnebago county, Illinois, spoke on "Improvement of School, Home and Country Life."

"The important considerations in growing potatoes are the securing of seed, proper soil condition, cultivation and insect and disease control," said J. G. Boyle. "The best soil for potatoes when quality and yield are considered is a rather rich, retentive, sandy loam that does not pack easily. Other types of soil may be used with fair success for producing a home supply. The State as a whole is not adapted to the growing of this vegetable on an extensive field scale. Smooth, medium-sized, well formed tubers, free from scab, should be selected for planting. These should be cut into two or three pieces with two to three eyes to each piece. Just before cutting the seed should be treated for scab by soaking the tubers in a formalin solution (one pound of 40 per cent formalin to 30 gallons of water) for two hours. Level cultivation should be practiced. On the average from 5 to 7 cultivations have proven very satisfactory. The potato beetle is controlled by arsenate of lead, two pounds to 50 gallons of water at the hatching period.

"The aim of the farmer's garden is to have maximum returns of as great a variety combined with as long a succession throughout the season as possible. Certain system of intercropping and successive cropping must be practiced. Hotbeds are needed in connection with the farmers gardens, three being sufficient. These must be started in March."

The Princess will show an Essayay drama, “Chains” for the first picture tonight. It is a thrilling picture. “His Auto’s Maiden Trip” is the title of a clever Biograph farce. Tomorrow night the feature two reel Selig animal picture “Kings of the Forest” will be shown. The picture is a real sensation and the scenes are produced in a thrilling manner. Practically all of Selig’s wild animals are used in the production. An interesting drama is woven in the pictures and the climax comes with the rescue of a woman and her child from the wild animals.

Theatre goers and especially those of Irish origin will be gratified to learn that “Top O’ the Morning,” the latest Henry W. Savage production will be seen at the Shubert-Murat Theatre, Indianapolis, commencing next Thursday, for three nights and Saturday matinee.

It is a new Irish-American comedy by Anne Caldwell. The piece is in three and four scenes, depicting life in a large American city of the present day. All the poetry, romance and wit that the Celtic race is noted for, are brought out in strong relief in Miss Caldwell’s play. While the piece visualizes dominant characteristics of Irishmen, its appeal is not confined to those of that nationality. For on account of the touch of dramatic interest it possesses, and its simple, wholesome story, it reaches the general public.

Prominent in the cast are such well known players as Tim Murphy, Gertrude Quinlan, Charles Erin Verner, Robert Cain, Thurlow Bergen, Peggy O’Neil, George LeGuerre and others.

OFFICIALS MUST GO TO INDIANAPOLIS

Indicted Directors of C. H. & D. Will Have to Appear in Order to Give Bond.

THEY WILL NOT BE ARRESTED

County Sheriff Theodore Porttens, who has received the capiases for the arrest of the C. H. & D. officials indicted by the grand jury for involuntary manslaughter in connection with the C. H. & D. wreck in Irvington, says that assurance has been given to him by the attorneys of the indicted men that it will not be necessary for the sheriff of Marion county to have them arrested and brought back to Indiana by his deputies, says the Indianapolis News.

Acting on this advice the sheriff is awaiting developments in the case. He expects the indicted officials voluntarily to appear and to give bond. The bonds for the indicted men have been fixed at $5,000.

In case of an arrest being made outside the state the general custom is to send a warrant to the sheriff of the county in which the person to be arrested lives, and, when the arrest is made, to send an officer from Marion county to bring in the prisoner. Funds for this purpose are at present low, and the expense of making the arrests in some cases has been paid by persons interested in the cases. Sheriff Porttens expects that in case the judge of the criminal court orders the C. H. & D. defendants brought in, some special provision will be made for paying the expense of making the arrest.

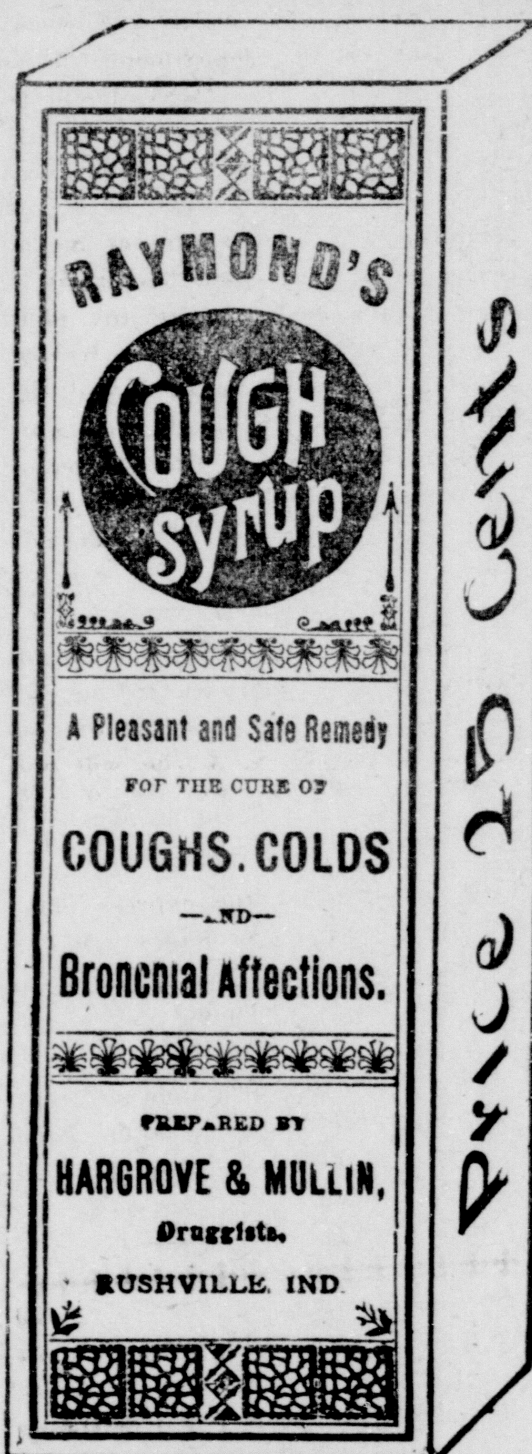

CASE POSTPONED.

The Basil Seward saloon case was to have been heard tomorrow by Judge Earl Sample in the Hancock circuit court but was postponed on account of the death of Judge Sample’s brother, Lucien Sample in Carthage. It is not known now just when the case will be heard.

CHAPTER XII.

The Key to the Situation.

The Watermelon accepted the inexorable with the tramp's sang-froid; Henrietta with a sweet dignity, though slightly flushed. The door had been shut before the conference began and the person on the porch had not come in sight of the windows. With a slow wink at Henrietta, the Watermelon strode to the door. Instinctively the general started to lay his hand on the young man's arm as he passed, to detain him a moment, but instead picked up his hat from the table and hoped that no one had seen that involuntary little gesture. The Watermelon threw open the door with a bit of a flourish and Alphonse, stolid, unsmiling, entered.

There was an involuntary sigh of relief from all, even the general.
"Well," asked the Watermelon, "what are the sleuths doing?"
"Where are the cars, Alphonse?" asked the general sternly, in the reaction of the suspense of the moment before.

"I left them at the back door," answered Alphonse, as one who understood perfectly the whole aspect of the case and realized that sometimes a quiet exit is more to be desired than great acclaim. "I thought you would not want them seen from the front."
"I have no objection to my car being seen by everybody," returned the general with a wave of his hand, which appeared to include the universe.

The back door was locked and the key gone, and the Watermelon had hurried to the door into the sheds and was struggling with the rusty lock. "This is the way," said he, "through the woodshed. That door's locked and there ain't a key; family probably left that way. I noticed the woodshed route this morning."

"We can shut this door on the side porch and lock it just as we found it," said Henrietta.

She shut the door and Alphonse as quietly turned the key. She lowered the window the Watermelon had opened and, finding that he had broken the lock in doing it, she slipped a dollar from her purse and left it on the ledge. It seemed to Henrietta to leave more, to pay for their night's lodging, would simply be adding insult to injury. One cannot take unpardonable liberties with another's possessions and then pay for it in the gold of the land.

"Come," said she.
The Watermelon had already opened the door and was working on the lock of the one in the woodshed. Henrietta paused in the house door, the basket on her arm, and glanced back at the others. "Come on," said she.

"I will explain," began the general, with a firmness that was fast weakening.

"Father," said Henrietta, "you cannot explain. Graft is dishonest. The only thing we can do is to run."

Billy grabbed up her gloves and obeyed with alacrity. Bartlett and the general followed in dignified majesty. Alphonse came last and shut each door as they passed through. With no undue haste, and yet with no loitering to admire a perfect summer morning, they climbed into the cars; Alphonse alone in the general's, the other five in Bartlett's, with Bartlett at the wheel.

"Shall we rush them?" suggested the Watermelon with happy anticipation.

Alphonse, like the voice of reason, calm, unemotional, blase, spoke: "There is a cow lane back of the barn. It is wide enough for the cars. It leads into the road farther on. I left the bars down."

"You're a man, Alphonse," said the Watermelon.

They glided without further comment through the barnyard into the rocky, tree-shaded cow lane. The general glanced behind. No one was in sight. The lane was narrow and rough, last spring's mud having hardened into humps and ridges from the passing of many feet. The cars ran slowly of a necessity, and while the engines throbbed, the noise was not loud, and the slight hill on which the house stood deadened the sound and concealed the cars from anyone in front.

Henrietta leaned toward the Watermelon, who sat on the small seat just in front of her and just behind the general. "On such an occasion as this," she asked, "what did 'father' used to say?"

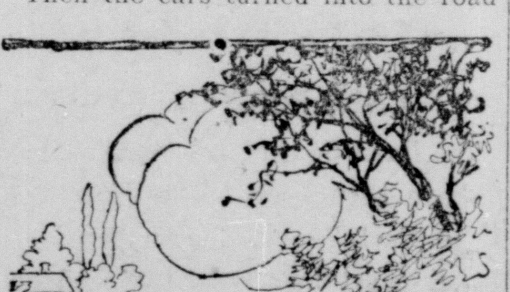

"Nothing," said the Watermelon. "There were two times when he never said anything, one was when he was asleep and the other was when he was escaping from the police."

"Oh," cried Billy, "he was a minister, why should he have had to escape from the police?"

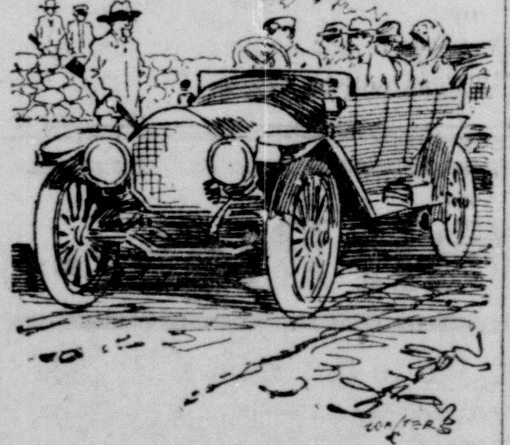

"He left the ministry," explained the Watermelon.

"What did he say when he left it?" teased Henrietta.

"Good-by," said the Watermelon. Then the cars turned into the road and two men stepped from the bushes on either side. They were tall, raw-boned country men, in flapping straw hats and blue jeans. Each carried a shotgun in the crook of his arm with a tender pleasure in the feel of it, each chewed a big piece of tobacco and each was apparently more than enjoying the situation. The Watermelon, leaning forward, with wary

MRS. HOWARD WAGNER

Writes Personal Letter to Her Druggist About a Bad Cough.

Mrs. Howard Wagner of Milton, Pa., writes her druggist as follows: "For two months I suffered from a bad cold, from which I could get no relief, then I began to cough and would cough until midnight every night. I consulted a doctor and took two kinds of medicine, but without benefit. One day seeing Vinol, your cod liver and iron medicine advertised in my paper, I sent for a bottle. After taking it the second day I did not cough so much and felt stronger, and at the end of a week I could go to bed and sleep without coughing once. I have now taken in all, six bottles, and I never felt better in my life. I have a fine appetite and have gained twelve pounds. As Vinol has helped me so much I want others to know about it."

The curative and strengthening properties of Vinol built up Mrs. Wagner's health and her cough disappeared as a natural result.

We guarantee that Vinol will do all we claim and will pay your money back if Vinol does not satisfy you. F. B. Johnson and Company, druggists, Rushville, Indiana.

Eyes, was pleased to see a look of surprise flit across their square-jawed, sun-tanned faces as they saw the second car slowly following the first, and four men instead of one, as the telegram had said "one man in a big red touring car," the make and engine number given.

"What's the make of your car?" demanded the taller of the two of Bartlett, laying his hand on the fender.

Surprised, Bartlett told, thankful that he had not been asked for his name.

"Engine number?" demanded the man.

Bartlett gave it.

"License number?"

"Great Scott!" snapped Bartlett. "What do you want next? My age? My number is on the back of my car. I have so many cars I have forgotten it. Go and look, or ask my man. Alphonse, what's the number on the back?"

"97411," droned Alphonse coldly.

"Be both these cars yours?" asked the man, puzzled and a bit disappointed.

"That car," said the general pompously, "is mine. Allow me." He drew his card-case from his pocket, and to the tall man's consternation and Bartlett's horror, presented him with his card. The two withdrew and consulted a moment. Clearly the family party before them was not the young man wanted in Wilton for stealing a motor-car and a suit of clothes, but for all that, what were they doing in an empty house?

"We can arrest 'em and get a fine anyway," said the taller of the two, and the other agreed.

The Watermelon leaned forward with languid interest, his hat on the back of his head. "How d'ye do?" he drawled. "What are you doing with the pogguns?"

"Hunting," grinned the spokesman pleasantly.

"Any luck?" asked the Watermelon. "Bet cher life!" said the man. "Got what we were after."

"Bear?" asked the Watermelon innocently.

"Autos," said the man.

CRAFTY MURDERS DISEASE GERMS

Scientists Open Warfare on the Deadly Use of Typhus and Cobra.

MURDER as a science, which has leaped in great bounds ahead of organized efforts toward the detection of that crime, was pictured to county officials in Chicago by criminologists arguing on the need of a "science bureau" in the coroner's office.

Scientific slaying of human beings in manners almost impossible of detection was described to the amazed officials by Professor Walter S. Haines, whose chemistry for years has combated the murderers, whose weapon is poison.

Professor Haines told how the modern murderer has found in the scientists' bacilli a weapon equally as deadly as the knife, the revolver and the ordinary poison without the telltale traces of any of these. His hearers shuddered at his vivid portrayal of present day murders committed under cover of science.

Twentieth century methods of committing murder that give the criminal almost as thorough protection as if he were possessed of the good fairy's invisible mantle were described. In his recital Professor Haines was backed up by Dr. Ludwig Hektoen, another authority.

Would Form Bureau.

With Dr. Hektoen Professor Haines is pioneering in the work of establishing the scientific bureau to devise ways and means to combat murder by typhus germs, by cobra poison, by deadly prickles and by other methods that give to the murderer immunity even from suspicion.

Professor Haines offered the startling information that crime is more successful than business—in other words, that the percentage of murderers detected in their crime is less than the percentage of men who succeeded in commercial ventures.

Coroner Hoffman joined with Professor Haines in asking the finance committee of the Cook county board for an appropriation of $2,500 a year for a chemist, $75 a month for an assistant and $1,000 for apparatus in order to lay bare a larger percentage of murders that are committed by scientific cunning.

Market For Germs.

Harry Olson, chief justice of the municipal court, who is also a member of the coroner's advisory board, created a sensation of his own by the statement that criminals are actually in the market today for deadly bacilli.

"Of late I have heard of different instances where suspicious characters have attempted to purchase typhoid germs," Judge Olson told the county commissioners. "What did they want with them? And if the germs were used with murderous intent, what means have we of detecting the guilty persons? I admit that it offers a difficult problem in any event, but we must equip ourselves as far as possible to fight such crimes."

The murderous dagger and death

ASSASSINS NOW OF AVIATORS

THE Royal Aero club of London, according to dispatches, is investigating what is probably the first attempt at murder in mid-air. Mr. Lawrence Santoni, managing director of the British Deperdussin Aeroplane company, has put before them allegations of the gravest nature. He says that on three occasions attempts have been made to damage the engines of military aeroplanes so that they would break down while in flight. The outrage is obviously the work of experts.

Mr. Santoni's charges in a letter to Flight are that Lieutenant J. C. Porte, R. N., was flying in a military two-seated aeroplane with a 100 horsepower Anzani engine over Salisbury plain Dec. 22, with a distinguished naval officer as passenger. After half a circle of the aerodrome the engine suddenly stopped when Lieutenant Porte was 150 feet over the trees surrounding the aerodrome.

By marvelous skill he managed to land inside the aerodrome fence. Had the engine stopped five seconds before he would have had no alternative but to come down on the trees, when the machine would have been wrecked. The engine was examined immediately, and it was found that all the working parts inside were completely smashed to bits.

In dismantling the engine a small steel nut, which was no part of the machinery, was discovered in the crank case. This nut had jammed the connecting rod, causing the pistons to break and completely destroying the engine. This nut could by no possible means have got inside the engine except by willful design.

The outrage is the more abominable dealing arsenic were held up as weapons that had been abandoned in favor of the safer capsule filled with the life destroyer that works slowly, but surely. Stealthy "doctoring" of foodstuffs was pictured as the method that had supplanted the old time waylaying of victims.

BY MEANS OF IS NEW METHOD

Finally the transformation of the death scene from one of violence to peace was depicted.

"It is hard to think of a murderer's victim leaving this world in an apparently natural manner, surrounded by the members of his family, but there are such murders, as science will show," declared Professor Haines.

Then the already shuddering county commissioners were introduced to what is known as the horrible "cobra death," which is still much of a mystery to science. They learned how a man might die after a few minutes of excruciating agony and leave not a single trace of the cause.

Hard Task For Science.

"It is just such deaths that science must combat if the rapidly progressing scientific murderer is to meet with any opposition from the law," said Professor Haines.

"A cobra poisoned pin can convey sure death and a horrible one with the slightest scratch, a scratch so slight one would not notice it."

Half of the deaths that come to the attention of the coroner's office require scientific explanations, according to the statement of Coroner Hoffman, who summed up the arguments before Mr. McCormick and his colleagues.

"In the absence of chemists and the necessary apparatus for scientific investigation these unsolved deaths go down on the records marked 'cause unknown,' and criminals are making capital of our inability to ferret out their guilt," said the coroner.

English Surgeon's Opinion.

James Cantile, a noted surgeon of London, has taken up the report of scientific murder investigation from Chicago with serious interest. The able Englishman in an interview corroborated the scientific statements made by the American criminologists that cobra poison could be injected into the victim so as to cause death and be beyond detection. He is a little skeptical of the theory that tuberculosis germs could be administered through the mouth with deadly effect.

"We are not sure that the germ of tuberculosis is communicable in this way," said Professor Cantile. "The stomach gastric juices are excellent protectors against germs, even those of cholera, which might be taken through the mouth without any communication. This has been done in the laboratory. It would be necessary to employ a hypodermic injection, which is incredible in the case of adults, except in the very rarest instances, although it is possible in some instances where children are concerned."

TRY MURDER WHILE IN FLIGHT

as the coward must have known that Lieutenant Porte seldom flew on the machine alone. His escape was one chance in a thousand, especially as a nasty wind was blowing, making conditions all the more dangerous.

On the day previous the same machine was flown by Lieutenant Porte, and another military two-seated British Deperdussin monoplane was flown by O. Derooy, chief pilot for the Italian Deperdussin firm. Both had been tampered with. The carburetor of each machine had been filled with water. This accentuates the deliberate nature of the outrage. Had the machines been flown by other than experts fatal accidents would have happened.

BEACH COMBERS GET GEMS.

High Winds Uncover Trinkets Worth $2,000.

The beach combers who flock to Rockaway Beach whenever a big wind comes along and sweeps several inches of sand back into the sea were busy recently combing the beach between Rockaway Park and Arverne for treasure uncovered by the great winds of previous days, which swept five inches of sand off the beaches into the ocean. The day's work, according to the on-lookers who watched the scramble, must have netted the two or three hundred men and boys who engaged in the work money and jewelry and other things to a total value of $2,000.

Among the articles recovered were three gold watches, at least 100 rings varying in value from one set with a ruby and fifteen diamonds to a baby's little silver ring. Many bracelets were also found, as well as stickpins and one gold buckled garter.

A PLAN TO SELL STATE CAPITOL

Hoosier Legislators Have Ambitious Project.

ADDITIONAL ROOM DESIRED

Proposition Would Dispose of Statehouse to the County For Courthouse Purposes and Pave the Way to Create New Capitol Connecting Two State Parks in the Heart of Indianapolis as a Centennial Memorial.

Indianapolis, Jan. 15.—There is always some sort of a bill or other that succeeds in attracting more than usual attention at each recurring session of the Indiana general assembly. If a present proposition works out into the formality of a bill, that bill will be "it" this year. This is nothing more or less than a proposition for the sale of the statehouse and grounds to Marion county for courthouse purposes, the county having outgrown its present quarters, and the erection of a statehouse, memorial building, museum and state library combined on a tract of ground to be purchased by the state directly north of University square.

The plan is believed to be an outgrowth of the fight upon the report of the state's centennial commission, made public some time ago. Negotiations for the sale of the Marion county courthouse have been under consideration for some time, and it is said that the amount of money to be paid for the old courthouse and its valuable site will go far toward the purchase of the present statehouse property. It is estimated that the total amount needed to complete the projected buildings for the state and the purchase of the two blocks between University square and the Indiana School for the Blind property will be in the neighborhood of $5,000,000. The site for the proposed new state building or group of buildings would be bounded by University square and the Indianapolis federal building on the south, by North Meridian street on the west, by North Pennsylvania street on the east, and by the grounds of the state's school for the blind on the north.

A Public Utilities Bill.

Senator Bernard B. Shively has introduced a public utilities bill proposing to enlarge the powers of the railroad commission so as to bring under its jurisdiction the regulation of all kinds of public utilities. W. W. Spencer, the Democratic floor leader in the house, also has been busy on a public utilities bill. In all respects, except that of extending the powers of the railroad commission to cover all public utilities, his views coincide with the provisions of the Shively bill. The Shively public utilities bill differs fundamentally from the bill introduced in the house by Representative John J. Keegan in being more specific as to the steps taken by the commission and in leaving less necessity for legislative and judicial action by the commission. In other words the Shively bill provides for regulation and control of utility companies by law through a commission, whereas the Keegan bill vests regulation and control largely in the commission itself.

A bill to establish a minimum wage commission, with the power to investigate and make recommendations in regard to minimum wages for women and children, and to publish its findings, was introduced in the house by Keegan of Indianapolis. The commission provided for in the bill would consist of three persons, appointed by the governor, one of the members being a woman.

In the senate a resolution by Senator Kistler was adopted, demanding a share of federal "pork" for Indiana streams. The resolution calls upon the United States senators and the congressmen from Indiana to work for the passage of appropriation bills which will assist in making navigable the streams of Indiana, and urges all legislation which will assist in creating waterways to the ocean.

Senator Rowland H. Jackson has submitted a bill which would change the present methods of punishing persons found guilty of offenses classed as "capital." At the present time death by hanging is provided as the only punishment for murder in the first degree and murder under some other circumstances. Jackson would make electrocution the punishment and do away entirely with the old hanging system.

The senate accepted the invitation, previously accepted by the house, to attend a "smoker" given by Thomas Taggart at the Denison hotel, and the members of both houses and attaches of the assembly were entertained in such fashion last night.

Senate Committees Named.

Lieutenant Governor O'Neill has handed down his committee appointments in the senate, which, with the respective chairmen, are as follows:

WOMEN KEEP OUT OF WAY OF SUBPOENAS

Money Trust Probers Making Vain Search.

Washington, Jan. 15.—Subpoenas have been issued, officers of the money trust investigating committee say, commanding the presence before the committee of Catharine Harrison and Anne Watson, two women who are supposed to be familiar with certain financial transactions which Chairman Pujo and his associates are probing. To the best of the knowledge of officials here, Miss Harrison, who occupied a confidential position in the office of the late H. H. Rogers, and Miss Watson, who was employed by William Rockefeller, are in Europe. So far the officials have been unable to locate either of the women, and they are inclined to the belief that they intend to keep out of the country until the money trust committee has passed out of existence.

Miss Harrison and Miss Watson, according to members of the committee, are familiar with the terms of the big copper deal in which Rogers and Rockefeller are supposed to have made millions. It was this particular transaction that the committee wanted Mr. Rockefeller to discuss.

The indications now are that Mr. Rockefeller will not appear in Washington as a witness, as it is understood that the millionaire is physically unable to comply with the wishes of the committee, but officials here say the committee believe they would really get more light on the copper deal if they had an opportunity to interrogate Miss Harrison and Miss Watson under oath.

Animal Understands Three Hundred Words—Obeys All Orders.

Jasper, an educated dog, entertained a party of scientists at the Smithsonian institution a few days ago. He was examined by Dr. Frank Baker, zoologist, and Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the institution, and described as "wonderful." It was demonstrated that Jasper is familiar with 300 words and that he understands any reasonable command given by his master, Dixie Taylor.

Jasper was the guest of honor at a big party to scientists given by Professor Alexander Graham Bell. For the edification of the Smithsonian staff the dog wrote on a typewriter, distinguishing between "man" and "woman," picked up bits of paper and put them either in a cuspidor or a wastebasket, as directed to do.

"Go into the room across the hall, find a typewriter and write," said Mr. Taylor to the dog. The dog obeyed, undirected.

"Look out the window and then push this book over," said Mr. Taylor, placing a book on its end on the floor. The dog looked out of the window, turned and pushed the book over with his nose.

Jasper obeyed commands that it was said he had never heard before. This, a number of the scientists said, proved that Jasper has reasoning power that is abnormally developed, going far beyond the range of pure animal instinct or acquired training. Mr. Taylor says that Jasper is "just dog"—plain, everyday mongrel, half English bull and half Italian greyhound, two and a half years old.

At Professor Bell's party Jasper, acting under orders, lifted eyeglasses from the noses of guests and did other stunts that he had not been trained to do.

BREATHES LIFE INTO BABY.

Physician Saves Infant Pronounced Dead at Birth.

After a family physician had pronounced dead a baby born to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rafetz of New York the husband telephoned Sydenham hospital and Dr. Harry Fried responded. He sought to induce respiration by various means and was unsuccessful after an hour's effort.

"I'm sorry," he said, "but I can do nothing."

The mother's tears roused him to renewed efforts. He breathed into the baby's lungs, and a half hour later, when the physician was almost exhausted, the baby began to cry. Three days later Dr. Fried called at the Rafetz house and both parents embraced him. The baby was squalling lustily. Little Josephine will live, the physician assured them.

against the amendment, as many Democratic members hoped and expected they would, it would have been defeated, and a record vote could not have been had. Under the plan as it has worked out, the bill leaves the committee of the whole and gets into the open house a vote by yeas and nays, and then it was up to the Democratic members to fish or cut bait. Many of them shuddered over the prospect of having to go on record. Leader Mann is chuckling over the trap he laid to smoke out the Democrats on civil service.
